

"As a human being I feel the call to reflect my inner and outer reality and to express it to the outside world. Using different media such as visual arts, music, theater and circus I try to pick up and process aspects of today's society. Art offers countless possibilities to reflect & question and through questioning art offers the possibility to find new solutions for old problems.

One day I decided to destroy my paintings ("destruction action"). I started to focus more on political topics and issues with the help of conceptual art. I am also interested in combining different techniques or modes of expression. Many of the resulting projects are concerned with the public and private space, as well with recycling-art and three-dimensionality. Whenever I travel, I share with the people I meet through the media of art, doing projects in art, theater and circus."
